Hundreds Killed In Brutal Bomb Attack On Besieged Madrid

By The Associated Press.
Madrid, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Hundreds of men, women and children, were believed killed today in three Fascist air raids opening a fearful assault on hunger-ridden, besieged Madrid. At nightfall there were 56 known dead, with Red Cross officials unable to total the exact number of mangled bodies lying in debris-littered streets and wrecked houses.

TYPHOON WANES IN PHILIPPINES ON EAST COAST

Hits Manila With High Winds And Rain

No Casualties Reported Yet In City Area

Manila, Dec. 3.—(Thursday)—(AP)—A typhoon, waning in violence as it moved northeast, brought torrential rains and high winds to Manila today, but no casualties were reported.

By 10:40 a. m. (9:40 p. m. EST Wednesday) only occasional gusts of wind marked the trail of the storm which left many streets flooded and minor property damage.

The weather bureau reported the typhoon, which had lost much of its velocity by the time it reached this area, was moving west by northwest. The storm approached Manila on a 60-mile an-hour gale. It first struck the islands along the coast of Tayabas province.

Little damage was reported in the city because people had sufficient warning to prepare for the blow. Officials said, however, the wind flattened temporary structures here last night.

Tayabas and other Luzon islands provinces were swept by a typhoon only six weeks ago, when at least 546 persons were killed and the missing totaled 1,045. That storm centered to the north of Manila.

The Philippine Clipper, ready for a routine flight to the United States, postponed its departure for the second successive day because of the typhoon. Likewise the China Clipper delayed its flight from Guam to Manila.

An elaborate weather observation system, embracing ships at sea as well as meteorological stations ashore, has enabled the Clippers to dodge typhoons.

Although the air route runs to the north of the Pacific storm cradle, several disturbances have crossed it in recent months but always have found the skyliners sitting comfortably in the harbors awaiting their passing.

FOR SAILS FOR URUGUAY AFTER PEACE ADDRESS

Promises Argentine To Remove Ban On Meat

Leaves Buenos Aires In Tumultuous Farewell

(By The Associated Press)
Buenos Aires, Dec. 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt sailed homeward across the broad Rio de la Plata tonight after tumultuous, rain-soaked farewell.

Behind him Mr. Roosevelt left Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the rest of the United States conference delegation to represent his country when the inter-American parley gets under way officially tomorrow.

Cheered by thousands of Argentines who lined the 50-block route from the United States embassy to the pier, Mr. Roosevelt embraced Argentine President Agustin P. Justo, who went aboard the ship for a few minutes.

Then as the Indianapolis moved off into the Rio de la Plata, Mr. Roosevelt stood on the upper deck waving a blue and white handkerchief while rain poured down on him and the thousands ashore, who set up a final roar of vivas.

Honoring Justo at a luncheon before he left, Mr. Roosevelt declared he would recommend that the United States senate ratify an Argentine-United States sanitary convention signed a year ago.

Under the proposed convention, the ban on meat from Patagonia—Southern Argentina—would be removed because, Mr. Roosevelt said, that meat was not diseased.

Although he said existing United States regulations against Argentine meat were inequitable, the president asserted ratification of the convention would not bring lower tariffs.

The Indianapolis carried the body of Gus Genmerick, the president's bodyguard, who died yesterday morning. President Roosevelt and other United States officials attended his funeral in the ballroom of the embassy before the body was taken to the cruiser.

The United States president had a full program planned for his six hours in Montevideo tomorrow.

President Gabriel Terra and members of his cabinet are to receive Mr. Roosevelt at the port at 9:30 a. m., half an hour before he is to land.

After going to the presidential palace to review Uruguayan troops, President Roosevelt and Terra are to drive to Montevideo's beaches.

Then President Terra is to honor Mr. Roosevelt at a palace luncheon at which the United States executive is scheduled to speak briefly.

A formal reception is planned for 3 p. m. and Mr. Roosevelt is to embark on the Indianapolis at 4 p. m.

The Indianapolis cruised leisurely down the Rio de la Plata so as not to reach Montevideo ahead of schedule, as it had done at Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires.

Trend Is Upward On Blooded Stock

Chicago, Dec. 2.—(AP)—International Livestock Exposition officials said today pocketbooks were fattening for breeders of blue blooded stock.

B. H. Heide, manager of the show, said the trend is upward and holds a very bright future for stock breeders.

Reports from sales showed a great interest in all breeding classes, he said, with a market emphasis on horses.

John T. Caine III, superintendent of the cattle department, said "prices all along the line will be higher this year." He attributed it to a rising trend generally.

"Sales of breeding animals," Caine said, will go beyond anything we have had in recent years. It will be evidenced in sheep, cattle and horses, but especially in horses. The interest in horses didn't increase this year, it jumped.

Heide said he found the general trend only one phase of the higher prices being paid.

Officials would not comment for publication on the prospective bids for championship fat stock. The grand champion steer, which has sold as high as $8.25 a pound on the hoof, will be auctioned tomorrow. Last year it brought $3 a pound.

Old timers around the exposition said they were convinced the 1935 price would be topped.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Berlin, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Karl Robson, correspondent of the London Morning Post, was handed an expulsion order today and given three days in which to leave Germany because of dispatches the government considered unfavorable. He is the sixteenth member of the foreign press contingent here to be expelled.

Mr. Curt Leitz was a business caller in the city yesterday afternoon from the Glasgow neighborhood.

Republican Votes May Check Relief Control in State

Amendment Makes GOP Votes Necessary On New Bill

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Republican minority struck unexpectedly today to check uncontrolled Democratic rule of the Illinois relief problem in the 60th General Assembly next year.

By amendment of relief bills pending in the present second special session of the 59th General Assembly, House G. O. P. leaders made it necessary for the Democrats to have the support of at least 17 Republicans if a relief bill is passed next spring.

Without a roll call and aided by several retiring Democratic members, the minority chiefs moved back the extension date of the three per cent sales tax from July 1 to May 1, 1937.

This will make it necessary for the coming regular session to pass a relief measure with an emergency clause requiring 102 votes instead of a straight majority of 77 which the Democrats could muster within their own ranks of 85 representatives.

The extension of the tax, proposed by Speaker John Devine last night at Governor Horner's request, is considered necessary by the administration to provide $3,000,000 monthly for relief through the winter months, at least, while the new legislature is working out its own solution to the problem.

Rep. Reed Cutler, Lewistown Republican, sponsored the amendment limiting the extension to May 1, but before two warm-up battles on amendments by Elmer Schnackenberg, Chicago Republican, and James Burns, Kankakee Democrat.

Schnackenberg's amendment, fixing the date at April 1, was beaten 23 to 18. Democrats declaring the limitation three months was not sufficient time for the 60th legislature to work out the problem.

Burns sought to kill the entire proposal by striking the enacting clause, but was overwhelmed 28 to 1. Speaking for his amendment, Burns said he was defeated for re-election last month, said the relief needs could be financed and the state government operated on a two per cent tax as would be effective after Jan. 1, unless the Devine bills are enacted.

Both houses adjourned the second session until next Tuesday when the House is expected to send the Devine bills to the Senate for passage there by the end of the week. The Senate transacted no business today.

John Dickman transacted business in the city yesterday afternoon from Mercedia.

Court Orders Save Chicago Men From The Electric Chair

Chrisoulas, Rappaport Are Granted Stays By Supreme Court

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Illinois Supreme Court today stayed the execution of one Chicago man and received the petition for a writ of habeas corpus from another seeking to escape the death sentence.

Both had been scheduled to die in the electric chair tomorrow night.

Peter Chrisoulas, convicted and sentenced to death for the slaying of Irving Feltberg, Chicago theater employee, was granted a stay "until further order by the court."

The habeas corpus writ was sought by counsel for Joseph Rappaport, condemned to death for the killing of Max Dent, federal narcotics informer.

In the Chrisoulas case, the court upheld the claim of the condemned man's counsel that Judge E. I. Frankhauser of Chicago erred when he vacated a stay he had granted Chrisoulas while considering an application for a sanity hearing.

The high court cancelled the order vacating the stay but did not allow the sanity hearing. Instead, it granted an indefinite stay while it reviews the record of the slaying and determines whether there is justification for a sanity hearing.

Rappaport sought the writ on the contention he was convicted on perjured testimony given chiefly by Arthur Dent, mother of the slain man, who testified she was at the scene of the slaying of her son. In his petition, Rappaport offered the court "testimony showing she was not at the scene of the slaying."

Governor Horner yesterday refused to commute Rappaport's sentence or grant Chrisoulas a further stay. Both men were given stays of 60 days by the pardon board in October.

In another case, the high tribunal refused to review again its ruling in the divorce suit of Maude and William DeMotte, in which the Graham two-year alimony law was held invalid.

LAST OF CIRCUS FAMILY DIES AT NEW YORK HOME

John Ringling Victim Of Bronchial Pneumonia

Was Master Of The "Greatest Show on Earth"

New York, Dec. 2.—(AP)—John Ringling, last of the famous brothers who built up a rolling empire under canvas, died at his Park Avenue home today of bronchial pneumonia.

The 70-year-old circus czar, master of what was billed from coast to coast as "The Greatest Show on Earth," had been ill only a few days, although the driving energy that carried him to an eminent place in the amusement world had been ebbing fast in recent years.

When he died, in the early morning hours, he was surrounded by a few relatives, friends and servants, with whom he talked, in his low-voiced, lachrymose way, almost to the end.

Born a poor boy, he died in the midst of lavish art treasures which had become his hobby in later years.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at a Broadway undertaking establishment. The body will be interred temporarily at Englewood, N. J., and taken to Sarasota, Fla., for burial later.

Only a few weeks ago a rumor got abroad that the short, stocky circus master, was dead. He assured anxious visitors that he was "very much alive and kicking" and said he planned to go to his winter home at Sarasota within the month.

John Ringling was born at McGregor, Iowa, the sixth of seven sons of a harness maker who came to this country from Germany.

The germ of the Ringling Brothers' circus was planned in their father's backyard, which became the scene of boyish shows performed for pimps and marbles.

As they grew older they organized the "Ringling Brothers' moral, elevating, instructive and fascinating concert and variety performance" tour.

By 1881 they had saved enough to acquire a small circus, which traveled from village to village on three old spring wagons. The circus boasted an educated hog, a headless rooster, a fire king, and a Circassian lady. Brother John was one of the clowns.

Ten years later the brothers owned a circus that required 43 double-length railroad cars, and from then on they gradually acquired other shows until the American Circus Corporation, which they controlled, including Barnum & Bailey, the Sells-Floto circus, Hagenbach Animal Show, John Robinson, Sparks and Al G. Barnes Shows.

His brothers died, one by one, leaving John Ringling the sole proprietor of all the larger circuses in the country.

The problem of arranging transportation for the huge caravans crossed him to such an extent he entered actively into the railroad business, buying and building several lines.

Dispatch From London Says Edward May Flee Country With Simpson

British Charge Foreigners Fighting In War

New York, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The New York Times, in a London dispatch tonight, asserts that conflict between King Edward and his cabinet has resulted in a crisis "involving the possible abdication of the king tomorrow." It also reports rumors that Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson would leave the country tomorrow and that the King might go with her.

"Upon the utterly astounded country there has burst a constitutional crisis," the Times said, "involving the possible abdication of the King tomorrow and succession of the Duke of York to the throne. The crisis is no longer hidden, the conflict between the King and his ministers has blazed into open flame."

"The cabinet is determined that marriage of the sovereign is not a private matter but a public and imperial concern. The King, on the other hand, is said to feel the cabinet has not constitutional right to dictate his private life, no matter how closely he must follow his minister's advice in public affairs."

"Between the two there is no yielding."

London, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The world's greatest Empire reached a government crisis tonight because of British King Edward's friendship for an American-born divorcee—chic Wallis Warfield Simpson.

For an hour today Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was closeted with the Monarch in what was reported to have been a showdown on the King's friendship with Mrs. Simpson and reports that he hoped to marry her.

Storn and silent, the Prime Minister strode into the Palace for a straight-from-the-shoulder talk on the crisis which has grown to such proportions that some quarters asserted Baldwin told Edward he and the cabinet would resign unless his majesty cooled his association with the former Baltimore belle.

He emerged at the end of the hour, went directly to the House of Commons and later to 10 Downing street, to confer with Sir John Simon, British home secretary.

As the government crisis heightened in intensity, it was learned from private sources that Edward himself is watching impending developments with unruffled composure, that above everything else he will consider the best interests of the British realm and take no step likely to discredit the heritage of the throne or violate the trust and loyalty of his people.

Edward will insist, these advisers said, upon his right as an individual to seek personal happiness in his private life, but he is concerned by criticism now directed against him. As to reports he had made arrangements for marriage to Mrs. Simpson, those close to him asserted the Monarch himself had branded the reports untrue.

Baldwin's visit to Edward, the second of the week, followed a long discussion in Fleet street with Lord Beaverbrook, British newspaper publisher, who recently abruptly curtailed his American visit because, it was said, he had been alarmed by the reaction of the American and Canadian press to the King's friendship.

The London stock market, often called the barometer of the empire's sentiment, tended downward as it became increasingly apparent that various units in Parliament were becoming united in their opposition to a marriage between the King and his American-born friend.

While persons of high estate within the Empire and traditionally conservative newspapers were becoming more outspoken, it was learned that the question of the King's association with Mrs. Simpson had been placed on the "permanent agenda of the cabinet."

Whatever were the private thoughts of the cabinet ministers, observers were agreed that they were trying first to "bring the King to his senses" without angering the strong-willed Monarch, if such were possible.

What goes on behind the closed doors of cabinet sessions is a carefully guarded secret.

The King, said the privately circulated "The Week," replied spiritedly to Baldwin and the Archbishop of Canterbury when they "raised the riot act over Mrs. Simpson."

"The Archbishop of Canterbury threatened to refuse the King communion of the church if the King announced his intention to marry his friend, Mrs. Simpson," the magazine said, and added parenthetically that all of London is quoting the King's classic reply to the Archbishop: "Please remember I am head of our organization."

Another story had it that Mrs. Simpson had been sick-a-bed for two days with a nervous breakdown.

Other persons, however, said she dined with a very select group of intimate friends in a cloistered rendezvous near London last night, and had made arrangements for a similar evening tonight.

Rumors kept pace with gossip through London's "tea table league" tonight as international crisis was seriously forgotten in conjecture on the future of the British throne.

INTERNATIONAL GROUP TO MAKE SPANISH PROBE

British Charge Foreigners Fighting In War

In War

Move To Send Observers For Report on Both Sides

London, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The International non-intervention committee, beset with British charges that foreigners are fighting in defense of Madrid, today moved to send observers to Spain.

The committee authorized letters to headquarters of both belligerents asking permission to send representatives to investigate reported munitions shipments to each.

The British demand that the group bar foreign volunteers from Spanish soil was sidetracked into a sub-committee which was to consider the proposal Friday along with plans for halting airplane shipments to Spain.

(Geneva, League of Nations officials discussed a plan to send an international commission to Spain to probe similar to those of the London group. Foreseeing strong opposition from Portugal and the interventionist General Francisco Franco, the officials nevertheless expressed belief such a proposal would reach the council session scheduled to meet on the Spanish situation Dec. 10.)

While the neutrality committee was wrestling with the Spanish crisis, Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in the House of Commons confirmed previous reports that Britain, France and Belgium were working out a new defense alliance.

He did not disclose details, but said merely that the obligations of England "shall approximate as closely as possible those of the Locarno Treaty."

(The Locarno powers were Italy, France, Belgium, Germany and England. Since Chancellor Hitler remilitarized the Rhineland last March, however, most diplomats have been inclined to regard the Locarno Pact as a dead letter.)

Whether Great Britain, under the new alliance, would feel bound to aid France if that nation were attacked because of her mutual assistance pacts with Russia and others, Eden did not say.

With the government thus looking anxiously at developments in both central and southern Europe, it was reported at Malta that two of England's mightiest battleships, the Hood and the Repulse, steamed off to Gibraltar "to relieve other ships in accordance with a long-arranged plan."

Block Subpoena Of Mine Union Books

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 2.—(AP)—A court order blocked today an attempt of federal prosecutors to subpoena the records of the Progressive Miners of America union for examination by a grand jury investigating mine and railroad bombings.

U. S. District Judge J. Earl Major quashed the subpoena in a decision handed down by telephone from Peoria, where he is conducting court this week.

The subpoena was issued Nov. 16 at the request of Samuel E. Whitaker, assistant to the attorney general and director of the probe, who said he wanted the records brought here for study.

George W. Dowell of Duquoin, general counsel for the union, filed a motion to quash, contending that rights and privileges guaranteed the organization under the constitution would be denied if the court ordered the books surrendered.

Judge Major took the case under advisement Nov. 20 after a hearing on Dowell's motion. The federal court clerk's office, which received Judge Major's decision, said it was not informed as to the grounds for the court's action.

Congratulations, Illinois

Today is Illinois' 118th birthday anniversary. The event will be allowed to pass this year without general plan of observance, but it is an opportune time for residents of the state to brush up on Illinois history, and review the accomplishments of the grand old Prairie State.

It was on Dec. 3, 1818, that Congress passed the act admitting Illinois as the 21st state in the union. For a number of years it has been the custom for the Illinois State Historical society to hold its winter meeting on Illinois' birthday, and to make the occasion a sort of birthday party. This year, however, the program is to be varied by using the occasion for unveiling a picture in the Centennial building at Springfield of Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, who was president of the society for 20 years prior to his death in 1933.

Time has stepped up since the formal birth of the State of Illinois. It was almost a wilderness at that time, with most of the northern half still unpeopled by white men, with Chicago yet unborn except as a military post, and with the city of Jacksonville and county of Morgan undreamed of. There were 15 organized counties in the state. The first session of the legislature had been held in September, and adjourned to await formal admission. Shadrach Bond was chosen the first governor, and the legislature started business with 13 senators and 26 representatives.

Illinois stands today a leader among the states. She ranks second and third in matters of population, wealth, industry, agriculture and the variety of its interests.

It has been claimed that were walls to be erected around the borders of all states in the union, Illinois could exist longer on its own varied resources than any other states. We do not know if this claim is true, but Illinois offers about anything anyone wants in the way of variety. She has farms, factories, mines, oil wells, gas wells, mineral deposits of many kinds; she has tiny hamlets, huge cities, a highway system that is the envy of many states. A progressive population tops off this brief description of Illinois, which today rounds out another milestone in history.

Illinois is a great state. No one need apologize for "being from Illinois." It is a leader, and its people should not be satisfied unless it remains in the upper bracket of states as it moves ahead into the second century.

Toys For The Children

Announcement that members of the Jacksonville Fire department are ready to recondition children's toys for distribution among needy families at Christmas time should meet with ready response by the public. If the firemen are willing to do the work, citizens of the community should see that they have plenty of material.

In hundreds of homes here there are toys that have "been put away," because children have outgrown them, or because the toys have developed defects or have worn out. Some families keep children's toys as a matter of sentiment, but in many attics, basements and other places of storage around homes, there are discarded wagons, tricycles, roller skates, doll buggies and mechanical toys that are not preserved for this reason. They merely have been set aside, with little thought directed to them as the years pass.

These second-hand toys can be put to good use. They can be painted and repaired by members of the fire department, and placed in homes where they will make the lives of small children brighter. It is a worthy piece of holiday work, one in which a large number of persons may share.

Get out the old toys, look them over and take a few to the fire department. A few minutes of your time will spell Merry Christmas for some little boy or girl.

Argentina Pays Up

A pleasing coincidence in connection with President Roosevelt's visit to the republic of Argentina is the announcement that the government of that country has arranged to pay, before maturity, sixty million dollars of six percent bonds sold to United States investors ten years ago. It is possible that the President's visit was made the occasion for the debt payment announcement, with a view of adding to the significance of the event.

Argentina is the only one of the numerous South American countries that has not defaulted on the loans obtained in the United States during the era of hasty and unwise floating of foreign bonds in this country, though several Argentine provinces and cities failed to live up to their obligations. However, these and several other governmental bodies have undertaken to make partial payments of interest and have entered into negotiations to resume full payments on the basis of reductions in the amounts due.

Argentina, like all other foreign borrowers, suffered greatly from the prolonged world-wide depression, but it has been able to balance its national budget and to restore its foreign trade to create an excess of exports over imports, so as to provide a fund for paying obligations due abroad.

One reason for Argentina's improved foreign trade situation was the drought in the United States which caused a sufficient advance in world prices on agricultural products and greatly improved the foreign markets for surplus grain and livestock produced in Argentina.

This debt paying policy of Argentina should inspire other South American countries to increase their efforts to meet their obligations. This would greatly help the "good neighbor" spirit which has prompted President Roosevelt to visit South America. European countries might also take notice—if Argentina's action doesn't inspire them, it might at least call their attention that they owe Uncle Sam plenty of money.

Writing To The Paper

A recent dispatch carried announcement that Charles Hopper of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, estimates he has written 78,000 letters to newspapers over a long period of years. To newspaper offices about the country the only news in that estimate is the total figure; for in the last ten years especially the communications of Mr. Hopper, with the Coeur d'Alene postmark, have been familiar in many offices. They have been familiar, only to a lesser degree, to perhaps millions of readers.

Mr. Hopper neglected to state how many of his letters have been printed. Certainly it has not been all of them, no doubt only a relatively small percentage of them. But Mr. Hopper, undaunted, continued writing, dealing with a multitude of subjects and usually in an intelligent manner.

His facility and perseverance are not commended, without qualification, to the general public. There must be limits of patience to newspaper readers. But if a citizen has a possibility of helpful hint on a subject of general interest, why should he not seek to express it and gain the widest possible hearing? It is almost a civic duty—again, within limits, for a newspaper must be the judge of the material it prints. But if the urge to expression is not a mere grouchy or complaint or a purely personal or selfish interest, the chances are that it will find an outlet. And it may be a genuine contribution to public betterment.

At least, newspaper letter writers should take courage and inspiration from the example of the man in Idaho.

Controlling The "Boom"

It's just one thing after another. Now that we're apparently on the way out of a depression, whose problems have given us nightmares for seven years, according to Walter Lippmann we're plumped right into the problem of "how to regulate the coming boom."

Mr. Lippmann agrees with business leaders that we are already on the edge of a boom. By taking proper measures now, we may hope for a sustained prosperity over many years. If we fail to do so, it will be just another repetition of the old fatalistic sequence—boom and collapse. And every intelligent citizen knows these collapses have been getting worse.

The country has some advantages now that it didn't have before. For the first time in our history, a big depression has been dealt with, as Mr. Lippmann notes, "under a deliberate policy of the American government." It should be easier now for the government to take the boom in hand. But he points out that it is not a job for the government alone, with the controls it has already set up, and the new ones needed; it is a job for business executives and labor leaders.

Only these three powers together can handle the matter so as to prevent destructive inflation, balance public budgets, see that the boom benefits are passed around fairly and wisely, and keep the prosperity train from running off the track. There are those who will not agree with Lippmann, who believe that when prosperity rounds the corner, nothing should be done to molest it or to control it. "Let nature take its course," is the policy of many.

A controlled boom would be something new in American history. It would be interesting to watch, and there would be plenty of spectators.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

New Dealers Center Fire on Supreme's Court's Prestige . . . Tie Vote on New York Job Insurance Law Gives Them Ammunition . . . Roberts May Be "Key Man" With Great Power.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Jacksonville Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington, Dec. 2.—Present New Deal strategy is to undermine the prestige of the U. S. Supreme Court, to prepare the public mind for whatever Roosevelt decides to do about curbing the court—if and when he decides to do anything at all.

The court, not for the first time, has helped the administration by a performance at which its critics point a finger of scorn. Just before the political conventions, when it appeared that Republicans would make preservation of the court's powers a campaign issue, the justices handed down a 5 to 4 decision against the New York minimum wage law, a ruling so unpopular that the Republican candidate thereafter publicly suggested a possible constitutional amendment. Court and Constitution faded away as big political issues.

Now the court is on the pan again because it split even, four justices against four, on the New York unemployment insurance act, approving as if by default a favorable decision of the lower court.

If the lower court had held the act invalid, the supreme court deadlock would have had the effect of denying states the right to provide for unemployment insurance, tearing away a New Deal cornerstone.

And the fact that no opinion was written on either side gave the critics additional opportunity for ridicule.

Action Called Absurd

Chief Justice Hughes once said: "The Constitution is what the judges say it is." Thus, when the judges of the highest bench fail to say anything at all on a vitally important constitutional issue, New Dealers are given a chance to say that the court's procedure in the unemployment insurance case marks the ultimate in absurdity.

Of course it is assumed that if Justice Harlan P. Stone hadn't been ill, the decision would have been 5 to 4 in favor of the New York law. General supposition is that Justices Hughes and Roberts moved over from the conservative side to join the two other liberals, Brandeis and Cardozo.

There is no assurance at all in this decision—as some writers seem to think—that the court will uphold the federal Social Security Act. The Hughes-Roberts shift came in the easiest possible kind of a case for a justice who wanted to be temporarily liberal.

The "no-decision decision" proved that there are still four die-hard justices—VanDevanter, McReynolds, Sutherland, and Butler—who not only refuse to "follow the election returns," but flout them.

The attitude of this quartet is in interesting contrast with the recent conciliatory attitude of Big Business, which heretofore has regarded the court as its bulwark against social-economic change.

Great Power For One Man

Another extremely important phase of the New York decision is the fact that it again makes clear how the future policies of the nation may hang on the beliefs of one man who has a

Handkerchiefs, or Mild Sprays, Should Be Used to Clean Noses

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

A little boy, once asked why we have noses, said "To wipe them." The right way to take care of your nose is to remove carefully, by proper use of a handkerchief, such foreign or obstructing materials as can be reached easily.

Those which cannot be reached with a handkerchief may be removed by use of a mild spray without pressure. Nowadays all sorts of mild sprays of inert oils, which occasionally include small amounts of camphor, eucalyptus or menthol, are available for this purpose.

They may be dropped into the nose with a medicine dropper or sprayed in with an atomizer. In spraying the nose, high pressure should never be used, as this may seriously harm the tissues and may force the infection much deeper than it has already gone. When the lining of the nose is infected, the first signs are swelling, redness, discomfort, and pain. The tip of the nose swells, and the swelling very soon spreads to the eyelids.

Because of the position of the nose on the face, its size, shape, and appearance are a constant matter of concern to many people. If, for any reason, a nose is lost entirely, the expression of the person naturally suffers, which is somewhat of an understatement. Sometimes the bridge of the nose breaks down because of infections, particularly syphilis, resulting in what is called a "saddle nose."

Nowadays, auto crashes are a most prominent cause of accidents involving the proboscis. There is a special type of injury, for instance, known as windshield fracture.

Injuries to the nose also are caused by falls, industrial accidents, railroad wrecks, and gunshot wounds, as well as by the impact of fists in fights.

In a street fight, anything is likely to happen to a nose and there are instances on record in which the tip of one has been bitten off by an agitated opponent, male or female.

Not all nose malformations are the result of accidents. Mother Nature brings many a nose into prominence by bestowing upon it a hump, a lump, a knob at the tip, a curve toward one side or the other, and sometimes curves toward both.

These odd shapes have given rise to a special type of treatment known as plastic surgery—a method which nowadays is known to bring about considerable improvement, if the work is properly done in a suitable hospital.

There are many ways of building up a broken-down nose and many ways of removing excess tissue. Humps are every nose that is undergoing repair or reconstruction demands special consideration.

Kenneth McDermith Leads Salesmen In Automobile Business In West

Kenneth McDermith, who will be life job and is not subject to censure, by the electorate.

Right out in the spotlight is Justice Roberts, who has been known to vote with the three liberal justices, but has done so less frequently than has Hughes. Assuming that Hughes were to "follow the election returns" at all times, you would have Roberts as a one-man balance of power on the court, in a position to validate or invalidate all legislation passed by Congress and endorsed by the president.

Roberts wrote the opinion which tossed out the railroad retirement act on the ground that it violated the Constitution's due process clause by taking money from one group for the benefit of another. He said matters pertaining only to social welfare of workers were "obviously outside the orbit of congressional power."

How he could have approved New York's unemployment insurance law after voting against her minimum wage law and how, more importantly, he can subsequently okay the federal Social Security Act after his railroad retirement opinion are questions of absorbing interest to all students of the operations of the legalistic mind.

Roberts, at 61, is the youngest and apparently the healthiest member of the court. Presumably he will be in the picture for many years to come.

There were influential Republicans who wanted to make him a presidential candidate this year and by 1940 they may be thinking that it's a better idea than ever.

Elks Set Dec. 24 As Annual Christmas "Kiddy Party" Date

Expect 400 To Attend Party; Will Begin Issuing Tickets Thursday

December 24 will be a big day in the lives of about 400 kids in this city, according to plans announced yesterday by J. G. Reynolds and Dr. D. T. Cloud, chairmen of the committee in charge of the annual Elks Club party for under-privileged children.

The annual Elks party will be held as usual in the Elks club rooms. The committee announced that it has made arrangements to have Santa Claus present about 5:30 that afternoon, and that to keep the children entrained from five to 5:30 the committee is arranging an interesting program.

Candy, nuts, oranges, and all of the sweet meats that go toward making a Merry Christmas will be ready for Santa Claus to distribute to the youngsters. The club plans to have a sufficient number of automobiles available to bring the children to the club rooms, and to return them to their homes after the party.

Tickets for the annual affair will be turned over to the cooperating agencies today. The Salvation Army and the Morgan county relief headquarters, in cooperation with the Illinois Emergency Relief offices, will distribute the tickets to the children entitled to attend the party. Children up to 13 years of age are eligible if they are certified by either of the two cooperating agencies.

Mrs. Charles Heaton was a shopper in the city yesterday afternoon from Manchester.

Mrs. Fred Markille was among those transacting business in the city from Winchester yesterday.

French Anderson of Chapin was a visitor in the city yesterday.

A man can get all he wants in life if he can learn to get along without the things he can't get.

Dick—I've been terribly worried. Greta—What about, dear? Dick—I wonder if I'm the only man whose money you ever loved.

Baseball Market Report Is That Cubs Have Sold Ethan Allen To St. Louis Browns

Montreal, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean still was in the St. Louis Gas House gang tonight, but two of his mates, the gallant Charlie Gelbert and catcher Virgil Davis, were members of the Cincinnati Reds.

As smart baseball men began to bet even money with sports writers that the great Dizzy would keep right on throwing baseballs for the Cardinals for years to come despite big money talk by Cincinnati and the New York Giants, infielder Gelbert and the veteran Davis were sold to the Reds in a straight cash transaction.

The deal was easily the highlight of a day of furious rumors and little business, which included the sale by the Chicago Cubs of the veteran outfielder, Ethan Allen, to the St. Louis Browns. The Boston Red Sox, skinflints this meeting as compared with last year, signed up catcher Johnny Peacock, who was lost to Cincinnati by a free agency-ruffing, for $8,000 which Peacock strolled into his own pocket.

The departure of Gelbert, who probably will be used by the Reds as trading material in another deal, removes another of the famous Cardinals world series heroes of the past and ends his gallant fight to make good with his mates after suffering a serious accident to his leg in a hunting accident in the winter of 1933.

Gelbert was a hero in the campaigns and world series engagements of 1930 and '31. A remarkable fielder and a deadly hitter in the pinches, he was one of the leading factors in the Cardinals' winning pennant drives. Although he hit over .300 only one season in six with the Cards—in 1930 with a .304 average—he was one of the most popular players in the game. In the 1930 world series he batted .353. The next year he was a world series hero again though hitting but .261. His fielding plays and timely hits were largely responsible for the victory over the Athletics in '31.

While hunting between the '32 and '33 seasons, his shotgun went off accidentally, all but blowing his leg off. Gelbert was off the active list the next two years but amazed every one by coming back with the help of a steel brace and playing good ball in '35 and '36.

The case went to the jury at 4:15 p. m., and a verdict of guilty was returned.

Modern Success Story Marks Pittsfield Valuable Player

Pittsfield.—One of the modern success stories was written down in the record of Higbee high's athletic teams this year by a youngster named John Jordan. He rose from the rank of a scrub to win the Jacksonville Journal and Courier gold football for being the most valuable player to his football team during the present season.

Sacrifice, hard work, and a fine mental attitude were the things that contributed to John's success. Football is John's hobby, because he has enough work to keep two boys busy. He likes hunting, fishing, swimming and basketball. But football is one sport in which John sought success, worked hard for it, and achieved it.

In the first place, the gold football winner lives on a farm north of the city about two miles. Before he comes to school in the morning he does some of the chores around home, and then, as soon as he gets away from the football practice field, he hustles home and does some more work.

On top of his football and other activities in the school here, he is a good student. He has put the same kind of careful thought into his football playing that he has put into his school work, and he is one of the best players on the squad.

To begin with, Jordan started the year with the oldest grid togs Pittsfield had, but that didn't bother him. He kept plugging away, taking his punishment as a member of the third string, then as a second stringer, and finally convincing the coaches that he had what they wanted on their varsity team.

Thus Jordan, with his 155 pounds and five feet nine inches of height, worked his way from the scrubs to the varsity squad, and when he got there, he kept on improving his blocking and tackling and general football technique. His team-mates noticed it, and they rewarded him by declaring that he was the most valuable man to the team.

Jordan is a junior, and is one of the 11 lettermen on this year's team who will be available for next year's eleven. The football squad also has elected Glen McCarter as its captain for the coming season.

Football Officials Critically Injured

Boston College Coach, His Assistant, In Crash

Boston—(AP)—Gil Doble, Boston college football coach, and Frank Murdock, his assistant, suffered critical injuries in an automobile accident early today.

Police said Doble's car struck a heavy iron rail in the center of a railroad bridge. Doble and Murdock, police said, apparently were thrown through the windshield of the machine.

At City hospital, surgeons placed the men's names on the danger list and gave their conditions as critical. Hospital officials said they had not yet determined the exact extent of their injuries.

Doble came to Boston College from Cornell University this fall, and concluded his first football season at B. C. successfully last Saturday.

The former Cornell Coach, known to thousands of football fans as "Gloomy Gil," brought Murdock with him from New York State College as an assistant.

Starting off on a rough and tumble exhibition, with players on both teams having a part in the unique type of game during the first quarter, but from then on, the players settled down to play some of the clever, speedy basketball that brings the customers in the gate.

FAN BREEZES

By Ernest Savage

George Veenker, whose name has been associated with football at Iowa State for 21 years, decided the other day that he had had enough, and turned in his resignation as football coach in order to devote all of his time to his job of athletic director.

Veenker went out while his reputation was still good, and he recommended that the line coach, Jim Yeager, be given a fling at the head coaching job. His recommendation was accepted.

However, Veenker also recommended that the track coach, Bob Simpson, who has been at Iowa State for 10 years, and Jake Daubert, for 17 years head of the swimming end of the athletic program, be given their dismissals effective July 1, 1937.

Veenker's statement in connection with the appointment of a new football coach is interesting. He said: "We might have hired some big-name coach, but nobody sends athletes here and nobody pays 'em. Yeager is heading for a fine coaching future. I feel that our particular football problem will be handled better by him than any man in the country."

It's true that the Iowa Staters have kept their record almost spotlessly clean of all charges of proselytizing and paying athletes.

Feller Says Son To Be Free Agent

Young Pitching Star Is Unworried Over Judge Landis Rule

Rochester, Minn., Dec. 2.—(AP)—W. H. Feller of Adel, Ia., father of the sensational 17-year-old Bob Feller, ace of the Cleveland Indians pitching staff last summer, said today he believed Judge Kenesaw Landis, high commissioner of baseball, would rule his son a free agent.

And should this happen, Feller said at least one major league club would bid $100,000 for his services.

The elder Feller is undergoing medical treatment at the Mayo clinic here. The controversy over young Feller developed as soon as he donned a Cleveland uniform. Lee Kever, president of the Des Moines club of the Western league protesting he had been a member of his team.

The elder Feller said that the first time his son got into organized baseball was when he joined the Cleveland team.

Young Bob on a visit to his father here, was unperturbed over the whole situation, saying he "didn't care which way Judge Landis' decision went." He apologized for not giving an interview on a previous visit, explaining "I was awfully late and I had to get home and milk the cows and do the chores."

School For Fans Draws Big Crowd To I. S. D. Gym To Enjoy Cage Pageant, Demonstration

Illinois College's basketball team got away to an impressive start on their season last night on the Illinois School for the Deaf court when they turned back the Carlinville Glove company team 45 to 31 in the final act of their opening skit "The School for Fans."

A gymful of spectators saw an interesting program in which the history of basketball from its peach basket days down to the present time was enacted by freshman players and by the varsity team, and then saw one of those games which for a few minutes promised to emulate the rough and tumble tactics of earlier times, but which developed into an interesting exhibition of basketball as it is played today.</

Creosote Explosion Endangers Dwelling

Frank W. Sayer Home Near Jerseyville Damaged By Blaze Monday

Jerseyville.—Fire threatened the country residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Sayer northeast of Jerseyville at eight o'clock Monday evening, but the flames were extinguished before any great amount of damage was done.

According to reports the Sayer family had been burning wood in the furnace and during the past few weeks quite an amount of creosote accumulated in the chimney. Monday night when Mr. Sayer opened the door of the furnace an explosion occurred in the chimney which set fire to the creosote.

The explosion blew out a flue piece in the dining room of the residence and the flames ignited the wall paper in that room, damaging the room slightly. The residence was equipped with a composition roof and this kept the fire from spreading.

Mr. and Mrs. Sayer attempted to fight the fire themselves for a time but when it appeared to be getting beyond their control, they spread the alarm among the neighbors and several nearby farmers helped to extinguish the blaze.

The Jerseyville Fire Department was called about ten thirty o'clock

Sunday morning to extinguish a roof fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arch P. Ely in the eastern part of the city.

It is thought that sparks from the chimney ignited the shingles on the roof of the residence. A hole about eight feet square was burned in the roof before the flames were put out.

The workers on the Recreational Project operating in Jersey County under the Works Progress Administration, during the next few weeks will devote their time to repairing broken toys which will be distributed by Santa's assistants to the children of needy families in the community, on Christmas Eve.

Any one who has discarded toys that can be repaired and used is asked to bring them to the Red Cross office here, and the articles will be called for.

William Stephenson, well known

Jerseyville man, was retired as a postal employee out of the local post-office Monday, November 30th.

Stephenson was sixty-five years of age November 8th and all postal employees are automatically retired at reaching that age or after serving for thirty years.

Samuel Stephenson, son of the retired carrier, who has been a sub-carrier for several years, received the appointment to succeed his father Tuesday, December first.

The elder Stephenson has been an employee of the postoffice for twenty-three years and during that time has carried the mail on City Route No. 3, the greater part of the time.

The retirement of Stephenson is the fifth to occur in the ranks of the Jerseyville postoffice employees in the past five years. The others who reached the retirement age are: the late Phil Wedding, John Walsh, Edward Houseman and William S. Piggott.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS DR. PERRY AT CENTRAL CHURCH

The largest audience since Sunday night assembled at the Central Christian church Wednesday evening to hear Dr. Albertus Perry's lecture upon the archaeological work being done in Palestine, especially in Capernaum and Jericho. The site of Capernaum in Galilee was discovered or uncovered in 1925; these discoveries revealed the ancient city which Jesus visited and the house in which Peter lived.

Dr. Perry gave considerable attention to the excavations that have been made more recently at Jericho about thirty miles from Jerusalem. There were three towns named Jericho, one about a half mile from the other. There were the Jericho of modern times; the Jericho of the Roman period with which Jesus was familiar; and the ancient Jericho of Joshua's day. Dr. Garstang is responsible for recent finds in ancient Jericho and has confirmed by his excavations the Old Testament story concerning this interesting town which covered within its walls about seven acres of land.

Dr. Perry's many visits to the Holy Land enable him to present his subject in a most interesting and attractive manner. He has had considerable experience in archaeological work in the Bible lands, especially in Palestine.

The speaker told a most interesting story of the Dead Sea which is the lowest and perhaps the hottest place upon our earth; thirteen hundred feet below sea level. But the sea is not dead. It is estimated that the minerals found in the Dead Sea and upon its shores could be sold for enough to pay the entire cost of the World War. Recently a large sanatorium has been established upon the shores of this sea; thereby utilizing the curative properties of the water of the sea. This sea is forty-eight miles long and twelve miles at its widest point, and about thirteen hundred feet deep; it has no outlet and its water contains no form of life. Thursday evening Dr. Perry will speak upon "Palestine of Yesterday." The public is invited.

45 CCC Men Placed Under Quarantine, But Continue Work

Scarlet Fever Case Isolates Men In Barracks, Who Work In Special Detail

Forty-five CCC men in Camp Jacksonville are being kept under a working quarantine on account of a case of scarlet fever which originated in the barracks where they live. First Lieut. M. Stamler, camp medical officer, said yesterday that the men will be kept isolated until the period of possible contagion is past.

The quarantine does not apply to other men in the camp who have had no contact with the victim of the disease. Those affected by the quarantine work on projects in a special detail and are not allowed to come into contact with other people. They live by themselves in their own barracks and eat apart from the others in the camp.

The quarantined men are confined to barracks at night and do not leave the camp except to go to work. Lieut. Stamler held a conference with Dr. Friedrich Engelbach, city health officer, and the arrangement has the co-operation of the city health department.

Trap Lines Working In Jersey County

Veteran Trapper Brings In Red Fox, Two Opposum Pelts As Catch

Jerseyville.—With the season opening Dec. 1st, in the central zone of Illinois on fur bearing animals, John Cummings, veteran trapper of Jersey county was the first man to arrive in Jerseyville with his day's catch.

Cummings had a red fox and two opossum pelts which he caught on a trap line at the Gus Heneghan farm southeast of Jerseyville. Cummings awaited until the zero hour the night of Nov. 30th, strung his line of twenty traps and waited until morning.

There are few men in this part of Illinois who are successful trappers of foxes, and Cummings is one of the select group. He has taken as many as three dozen of the sly Reynards in one trapping season which is a large number when consideration is taken of the small number of fur bearers of this species.

"Foxes will be a good bet for the trapper this season," said Cummings.

They are more numerous than they have been for some years. I made my first set for foxes at the Heneghan farm where the animals have been causing Heneghan and other farmers in that locality considerable losses to their poultry. At Heneghan's the foxes have been catching his ducks.

"There are fewer minks in this section of Illinois and when their number diminishes you may expect to see the muskrats and skunks become more numerous again. The past few years there has been lots of minks in the locality and practically no skunks and very few muskrats.

PRESSWheat Continues
Record Advance

Chicago, Dec. 2. — (AP)—Climaxing seven successive days of advancing prices, renewed waves of speculative purchase orders whirled wheat up about two cents today to new record top quotations. Corn, oats and rye, as well as wheat, all outdid previous peak prices for the year and much longer.

Anxiety over the European political crisis, especially as to chances that open hostilities outside of Spain might develop, focused in large degree the attention of traders. Dealings showed a feverish character at the time, but price reactions became the rule as the day drew to an end, with the selling in progress to realize profits.

Heavily increased estimates of proposed import purchases of wheat for Italy were current, one prediction pointing to a probable total of 56,000,000 bushels.

Wheat closed irregular, 1/2 of a cent lower to 1/4 higher compared with yesterday's finish. Dec. 124 1/4; May 120 1/4; July 107 1/4; corn 4-11 down, Dec. 106 1/4; May new 102 1/4; July new 98 1/4; oats unchanged to 1/4 off, May 45 1/4; and rye varying from 1/4 decline to 1/4 advance, May 93. Provisions results were unchanged to 25 cents set-back.

Buying Interests
Boost Hog Prices

Chicago, Dec. 2. — (AP)—Hog prices advanced 10 to 15 cents in instances 25 cents in a market stimulated by broadened demand from all buying interests today.

Top rose to $10.10 per hundred-weight, the highest level in almost two months. The price upturn widened as the market progressed with demand strong at the close.

Traders said the principal stimulating factor was a slight contraction in receipts. The supply fell to 33,000 from yesterday's two-year peak volume of more than 40,000 head. In addition, livestock men said various reports to the trade indicated the movement of pork and other meats as well was satisfactory.

The cattle run of 10,000 was slightly below requirements and all interests participated actively in the market. The result was a general stiffening of prices in all branches of the trade with some medium weight and weighty steers, which have been weak, selling a shade higher. The top of $12.50, matching yesterday's ten months peak, was paid for yearlings and 1,280 pound averages.

Fat lambs lost 25 cents, but sheep and feeders were about steady. The lamb top was $8.90.

Wholesale pork loin and beef carcass prices were unchanged.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

THE fact that the coconut will float in salty sea water for months, without injury to the seed, is believed to be the reason for the wide distribution of the plant. Its ancient home is unknown, but it was known to the Asiatics some four thousand years ago.

HALF-ACRE in EDEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARCIA CANFIELD, daughter of wealthy PHILIP CANFIELD, knows the neighborhood is buzzing with gossip over the disappearance of PHILIP CANFIELD. Her appearance, a shortage in her father's funds has been discovered. With her father, HELEN WARD, and others, Marcia is in a restaurant when there is a hold-up. Marcia loses a ring that was her mother's.

Learning Frank is in Chicago, Marcia goes there to persuade him to return and face his financial obligations, but before she reaches him, Frank disappears again.

WILLY STELLICI suspects his brother, CARLO, of being involved in the holdup, and finds some of the loot in CARLO's home. He returns Marcia's ring, tells police what he knows of the holdup, but CARLO escapes.

BRUCE McDUGALL, artist, comes to make his home in the town. DOROTHY OSBORN, the dislikes Marcia, invites him to dinner.

CARLO, in New York, becomes desperate for money and returns to his criminal associates. They attempt to rob the bank, but the alarm is given. McDUGALL sees the holdup, cries out a warning to start the car. The robbers escape.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

DOROTHY OSBORN stopped her car within a hundred yards of the bank and looked back. A crowd was gathering, milling futilely about the bank's doors and peering down the side street through which the bandits had fled.

Firing the last cartridge in his pistol after the vague shape of the robbers' car, the policeman who had responded to the alarm in general to call for reinforcements from the station house, and then looked wildly around for a car to give chase.

A limousine was approaching from the direction of the railroad station and the officer jumped into its path, gesturing commandingly. McDUGALL, having met Mrs. Osborn at the door of the store in which she had been shopping, had just escorted her to her own car when the commotion in the limousine rushed past, the policeman winding round the window of the door at his side and reaching in his belt for more cartridges.

"Let's go after them!" cried Dorothy excitedly.

Mrs. Osborn surprised McDUGALL by assenting eagerly, and they scrambled into the old car, the artist vainly warning them that there were bandits and gunplay ahead.

In the commandeered car the policeman was shouting directions to a uniformed chauffeur.

"Straight down to Shore Road!" he yelled. "They headed down Hillview Avenue, so they got to come out on Shore Road. Keep her rolling!"

Someone leaned forward from the rear seat and pointed the car off the road, so that its headlights glared upon the giant scratch across the snow and the crushed machine at the end of it. McDUGALL was out before she stopped, and was running toward the other car.

One door in the twisted frame refused to open; he jerked at another and reached in, slowly, gently, pulling out a man. A man who was still.

Dorothy was beside him as he dragged off his overcoat and placed the man upon it, in the snow. She helped him as he reached again into the car, bringing out another man, and her own coat went down for him.

And yet again, and this time McDUGALL straightened up with a gasp. Marcia in his arms and staggered, with white face, toward the Osborn car in the road.

At sight of the two cars, one wrecked and the other turned with its lights on the spot, another machine, racing from town, slowed up, but the policeman who had been tossed from the Canfield car was on his feet again and waved it ahead, with shouted directions. It was a police car, taking up the chase.

Other cars now were streaming along Shore Road, and it was a brief matter to flag two of them to carry Philip Canfield and the chauffeur back to the town. Dorothy started her own car; McDUGALL, in the back seat, held Marcia in his arms.

The street lamps, flashing in, projected his image to Dorothy at intervals through the rear view mirror—not clearly, but well enough.

The old car heroically threshed its way.

The policeman had walked over to the bundle in the road and dragged it aside.

Carlo Stellici, with a bullet in his head, had paid for his error in planning, and for cravenly fearing disaster, a greater speed along that ice-covered road toward freedom.

RETURNING from troubled dreams, Marcia Canfield's first confused thoughts were of hurtling down to crash in a field of white. For uncounted moments she went through again the experience of landing in an airplane on a snow-covered farm, and then she remembered the more recent experience of being tossed off a road in a careening automobile.

A stab in pain stimulated her into the present, and she saw, not the white of snow, but a room, tiredly white. A glaring room, which, before she could identify it, was lost again in a black mist. (To Be Continued)

Miss Mary A. Pascoe Receives Memorial Cup at MacMurray

Evansville, Ind., Student Is Awarded Honors During Junior Recognition

Miss Mary Angeline Pascoe was awarded the Conlee-Kent Cup Wednesday morning at the recognition service of the Junior Class of MacMurray College. This memorial cup was established for Rosalia Conlee and Frances Kent, members of the Class of '32, who died soon after graduation, and is awarded each year to the junior who, during her sophomore year, most nearly represents the college ideal.

Miss Pascoe is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pascoe, of Evansville, Indiana. She has held an office in her class for two years and is Social Chairman of the Y. W. C. A.

The program opened with an organ procession played by Miss Doris Overby, followed by a prayer by Dean Roma N. Hawkins. Miss Lillian Vesely then sang "Devotion" by Robert Schumann, accompanied by Miss Overby at the piano.

Dr. McClelland Speaks.

Following the presentation of the cup by Miss Ann Scott, President McClelland began his address by saying, "In the Third Scene of the Fourth Act of Julius Caesar, there occur the following words:

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,

Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune.

This is one of the wisest of Shakespeare's observations.

"That there is a tide in the affairs of men," said President McClelland, "is one of the most interesting and significant phenomena of society." He illustrated this fact by describing the low ebb of English religion and morals in the early part of the eighteenth century and how, under the leadership of John Wesley, the tide changed and there developed the Wesleyan or Methodist movement which brought a spiritual awakening to the people.

Turning to recent events in this country, he spoke of the change which is now taking place in the economic condition of the United States and of how prosperity is coming like a flood. He asserted that of this change President Roosevelt was both cause and effect, as was John Wesley of the religious revival of the eighteenth century.

Democracy Tide Strong.

President McClelland then referred to the decline of democracy following the World War and of how it has been quite generally held that democracy has failed and is doomed. Everywhere men have been saying that there is a tide moving towards Communism and Fascism, but in the opinion of President McClelland there are evidences today of a change and the tide is beginning to flow in the direction of democracy. As an indication of this, he cited the meeting now in session at Buenos Aires at which President Roosevelt made an address. He quoted from that passage in the President's speech where he called upon the Pan-American republics to maintain and defend the democratic form of constitutional government and to attempt by every honorable means to prevent any future warfare among themselves.

He also referred to the drift towards war which has been so evident during the past ten years, "but now," he said, "the tide is turning and a movement towards peace is on its way."

Again, he mentioned the meeting at Buenos Aires and expressed the belief that President Roosevelt's message there would probably have a restraining effect upon the European dictators who have been clamoring for war.

Notes Great Movements.

President McClelland urged the students to become aware of the great movements which are operating in the world for the betterment of mankind and to identify themselves with them. He also pointed out that in their own lives, at this particular time in their lives, the tide was at the flood and that they must seize the opportunities which are before them. He quoted the German proverb "When God says 'today,' the devil says 'tomorrow.'" and concluded by reading the whole passage from the speech of Brutus. The recognition service was concluded with the singing of the class hymn, "Lead On O King Eternal," and the Alma Mater.

Rev. Frank Lawler And Mother Badly Hurt In Accident

Former Local Priest Has Severe Injuries When Car Skids, Overturns

Word has been received here that Rev. Fr. Frank Lawler, formerly assistant pastor of the Church of Our Saviour and well known in this city, was injured this week in an auto accident near Hume, where he is now serving as pastor. His mother, Mrs. Emma Lawler, who was riding with him, was also injured.

It is understood Father Lawler turned his car to avoid collision with a truck. The machine skidded and overturned, and was badly damaged. The former local man had his back wrenched, and is confined to his bed. Physicians fear pneumonia may complicate his illness.

His mother received an injury to her chest. It is thought the accident occurred sometime Tuesday. The car in which the two were riding was badly wrecked, and the occupants are said to have narrowly escaped death.

Helen Bashford was a local caller yesterday from Griggsville.
